They moved to Minneapolis and soon purchased a home in Crystal, Minnesota where they raised their four young boys. Jerry was employed by Northland Foremost Ice Cream Company and then worked as a building maintenance engineer for United Properties. In 1980, they purchased a cabin in Onamia and spent every weekend traveling up north creating a hobby farm that they would eventually move to and enjoy their retirement years. The couple loved dancing, and Gerald would entertain everyone with his concertina. He enjoyed deer hunting, walleye fishing and took pride in teaching his sons to carry on the tradition.
