“ I remember spending my high school years and quite a few adult years just hanging out with Josh. He had a unique way of seeing things. He was all of things to all of people. Some good some bad. But he was always a brother to me I hoped to reconnect some day when we were all doing better. It breaks my heart to have missed the chance. He always had a smile and a way of encouraging me to stay on the right path. He truly looked out for me and was one of the few people in my life that I knew loved me. I did then, do now, and always will call him my brother. Ill never forget him.
