“ I'm sad to see that Shirley has passed away. She was such a kind and beautiful person to know. I usually fixed her computer problems when I lived in Minnesota. She will be missed by many people besides the members of her family.

“ There are so many reasons I loved Shirley. Her intelligence and dedication to family were obvious to me from the first time I met her. Our many trips to Little Falls to visit her and Dale were filled with great family times, lots of laughs, and good meals. I will miss having conversations with her. I loved having her wisdom and intellect to converse with. Shirley's old school appreciation for hard work and responsibility were things that I really liked about her. Shirley and Dale were always so generous to us and our kids. They were a wonderful influence on our kids in many ways, but showing them the importance of saving money and being responsible is something I very much appreciated. I will miss Shirley very much, will cherish my many wonderful memories with her, and am so thankful to have had her in my life. In loving memory, Todd

“ My great-grandma, Shirley, meant the world to me. I was so lucky to spend many summers with her, full of lessons and memories— learning to ride a bike, hand sewing, and setting the dining table, which became our little family ritual.

She always made sure I was apart of the things she cared about, helping others and being involved in her community. Those moments shaped who I am today.

My grandmother was truly one of my favorite people. I even wrote a college paper about her, and hearing her stories made me admire her even more. As I got older, she was always checking in on me— still guiding, still caring.

Her love for family visits was something you could feel, and I’m so grateful that my daughter got to know her great-great-grandma. I’ll miss her deeply, but I’ll carry her love, her stories, and her wisdom with me always. I love you, Grandma.

“ She was my go-to for everything — the voice that steadied me, the heart that understood me.

Grandma tried to teach me how to sew, but I never quite picked it up — her patience outlasted my stitches.

Her love, though, is stitched into my heart forever. ☐ - Nicole
