“ "Z", So many years of being together and discussing the "boys" antics and happenings. We learned so much from each other as we mothered our boys as we felt God guided us to. You have been a wonderful mother to Skylar and the pain you feel I can't imagine. Continue to follow God's guidance as your role of motherhood for him changes now. You now have an angel in heaven sending his strength to you in a new way as he sits with his father as they watch over you. May God provide you comfort and strength and understanding.

God's Peace to you. "Korver"###imported-begin##Diane Korver###imported-end##

“ Diane,

Chaplain Gregg here. I know you never want to meet people for the first time at a tragic event like Sunday Night. It is apparent to me and everyone else that you were and continue to be a very loving caring mother. I can only say that Skylar knew of your love and how unconditional it was. I have been whispering prayers all day today for you and I know you will be supported by our community in ways you never expected. Rest in peace Skylar.

“ My heart aches so much for your loss. I met Skylar when I was a chaperone for a Spanish field trip. I remember telling him that I felt bad for him following an old lady and a bunch of girls around all day, but I think he had a good time anyway. I am Vanessa Schram's Mom and I know she is one of many of his classmates and friends who are deeply hurting along with you today. “ I wish I could find the words.....Skylar never disappointed any of us with his witty comebacks. As a little kid he would come into the bank and charm all of us, even to the point of being teased ~ one of our co-workers was going to marry him. He was always on top of his stock options..... our little stock broker. He was a master chef in disguise. Diane, Tyler and family we pray for you daily for strength and courage. Rest in peace Skylar, you are now free and are at home.##imported-begin##Kim, John and Brooklynn Freidig##imported-end##
